The Washington County Republicans held a candidates forum on Monday, June 14th. The forum was open to the public and was attended by the candidates for various county offices. The forum included discussions on county issues such as education, law enforcement, and economic development.

The forum was hosted by the Washington County Republicans and moderated by Jerry Patterson, the Publisher and Managing Editor of the Otis Telegraph. The forum was attended by a large audience, and many questions were asked by the audience members.

The forum began with a brief introduction by the moderator, who welcomed everyone and thanked the candidates for taking the time to participate. The candidates then introduced themselves and gave a brief overview of their backgrounds and experience.

The forum then moved on to a series of questions, which were asked by the moderator and the audience. The questions ranged from local issues such as education and law enforcement to more general issues such as the economy and politics.

The candidates were asked to address a variety of topics, including their views on education, law enforcement, and economic development. They were also asked about their plans for the future and how they would address any challenges that the county might face.

The forum was well attended, with many people showing up to listen to the candidates and ask their own questions. The candidates were given the chance to speak on a variety of topics and to address any concerns that the audience might have.

The candidates were urged to continue to be active in their communities and to work toward making the county a better place.

In conclusion, the candidates forum was a great success. It was a great opportunity for the candidates to discuss their ideas and to share their views with the public. It was also a great opportunity for the audience to learn more about the candidates and to make informed decisions when it comes time to vote.
